

CHRYSLER
June 15, 2009

New Chrysler was due to file its final list of assumed contracts on June 12th. Rumors we are hearing are that some dealers who were not on the original list of rejected contracts, may not be, at this point in time, on the final list of assumed contracts. We would appreciate hearing from any of you who have had contact from Chrysler representatives concerning any of the bankruptcy issues. These contacts may have been in the form of telephone calls or personal visits concerning facilities improvements, channeling, etc. As we find out more about these “limbo” dealers, we will pass it along. Those dealers who were not on the assumed list but were not on the rejected list could be placed on the assumed list a bit later in the process. I’m not sure that we have any of these in Indiana but it is worth noting.
